

FIRE CONDITIONS SURVEY OF CITY NOW UNDER WAY

Annual Inspection Is Being Made By The Fire Department — Information Secured Used In Fire Fighting

A city wide survey of fire conditions is under way in Phoenix, with Fire Chief William Simmons acting as director. This inspection, a part of the department's yearly program, is conducted in the interest of fire prevention.

Every industrial, business or private structure within the special or general fire limits of the city will be inspected during this survey, it was announced. Conclusions reached will be made a matter of record by the city, but they do not constitute a report to the national board of fire underwriters.

Methods of construction, materials used in construction, in fact, every phase of fire prevention is investigated by the inspectors and a written report made.

Each report contains the following facts: Location of property, the occupant and the owner; height of building; stories; kind of building; kind of roof; parapet wall, height above the roof; explosive volatile oils; acids or inflammable material; sidewalk grates; skylights; lighting; kind of heat; stoves, furnaces, flues; condition of boiler roof, fireproof or not; fire shutters, wire glass, stairways up; stairways to basement; elevators; pipe holes; well holes; electric cut off; gas meter; electric wire; fire doors; three gallon extinguishers, date recharged; standpipes and hose; fire escapes; automatic sprinklers; number of people on each floor; rubbish, where?; night watchman and A. D. T. service.

Get Valuable Information

All of these facts are valuable, indispensable to firemen planning methods of combating a big conflagration. It was pointed out. And these reports give them first hand information about each building and structure. In case of fire they know exactly what to do and how to do it to fight the flames, gested by members of the different departments, from chief down to hosemen. It is a part of their schooling. After studying the reports, firemen discuss among themselves and their superiors the most approved methods of giving battle to spreading flames, how the most approved methods could be applied as regards a particular fire. They determine where the streams of water should be played under certain circumstances and where they should be played under entirely different conditions.

The reports also form the basis for fire prevention orders. Fire Chief Simmons studies conditions revealed in the reports and if discrepancies are found, cleanup orders are issued. Reinspection is conducted at the end of 24 hours and if the order has not been complied with a second order is issued returnable in five days. Then another inspection is in order. If by that time the improvement has not been made, a warrant for arrest on a misdemeanor charge is issued.

MADE FAST TIME IN RETURNING TO JAIL FOR FIREMEN'S BALL

Rafael Frayne and Alfredo Ramos completed a round trip to the city jail, which is considered a local record. They were in a charge of vagrancy Thursday morning, released under a suspended sentence Thursday afternoon and returned to jail on a charge of burglary Thursday night. Their quick return to the other side of the bars was due to the efforts of Policemen McGrath, Crowe and Lucey, who investigated the burglary of a pool hall owned by T. Yoshimura at 146 South First street. Entrance to the store was made through a window about 9:30 o'clock Thursday night and the burglars fled. The officers had Frayne and Ramos under arrest.

According to the officers, the two Mexicans had in their possession at the time of their arrest, goods which had been stolen from the pool hall. It was a light haul consisting mostly of cigarettes. Frayne and Ramos will be turned over to the county for prosecution.

COMPLETE PROGRAM FOR S. A. CONVENTION

The program for the state convention of county Salvation Army advisory boards to be held in Phoenix Sunday, February 27, is practically complete. The committee on arrangements announced yesterday. The convention will complete plans for a state-wide financial drive in the one-day session. Major E. M. Duncan of San Francisco, director of the financial campaign, is now touring the state in the interests of the meeting here. On this trip, he will confer with the 14 advisory boards in the different counties, make plans for the drives in those counties and aid in the selection of delegates to the state meeting.

Governor Thomas E. Campbell will be the principal speaker on the convention program, it was announced last evening. Mayor Willis H. Plunkett will give the address of welcome on behalf of the city and other speakers will be Commissioners of San Francisco, Major Duncan and several prominent Salvation Army officials of Arizona.

his permanent residence. He went to and from the ranch every day in an automobile, but about six miles of the road was of a quality to tempt the patience of the most skillful driver.

MUSICAL COMEDY IS RAMONA'S OFFERING

With the return of "Mack's Merry Mermaids" for an extended engagement starting today, the Ramona announces a season of musical comedy that is bound to find instant favor. "Mack's Merry Mermaids" during their recent engagement at this house proved one of the most clever organizations that has ever played a Phoenix engagement. With the company on its return engagement will be found all the favorites who established themselves during the former stay here, as well as several new faces.

Pat Patterson continues as the principal comedian and is ably assisted by Bobby Vernon and the other male members of the cast. Dolly Fowler, the dainty soubrette, is just as capricious as ever, while Anita Meredith in the prima donna's role never fails to win her hearers. And there's the "Delightful Dancing Dollies," the clever chorus.

The company returns with all new shows, a complete new wardrobe, scenic equipment, new lighting effects, and will continue to feature the very best of musical comedy offerings. Ramona will continue to present a complete program of motion pictures. Matinees will be featured today and tomorrow.

William Russell in "The Twins of Suffering Creek" is the picture attraction for today.

Columbia Dorothy Phillips, who captivated theatergoers in "The Heart of Humanity" and "The Right to Happiness," is taking a fresh grip on the public's heart in her current feature, "Once to Every Woman," which is now on view at Mauck's Columbia theater. In the opinion of many, her role of Aurora in this production marks the crowning achievement of her career.

Robert Anderson, called "The Greatest Dane Since Hamlet," supports Dorothy Phillips in "Once to Every Woman." He was born in Odense, Denmark, and began his dramatic career on the speaking stage there and in other European countries.

A sympathetic understanding of the complex nature of what is generally known as a "boob" has enabled Anderson to depict the role of a rural Romeo with delightful realism. His first big part of that kind was with D. W. Griffith in "Hearts of the Cucukoo." His first work in a photodrama in which Miss Phillips starred was in "The Heart of Humanity." Allen Holubar's masterful war-drama.

ness awaits the patrons of the Blue Bird tonight. The beautiful dancing place is all ready for the happy crowd tonight which will gather at the temple of happiness to enjoy the dance supreme. Refreshments are to be had all during the evening and checkroom facilities are at the convenience of the patrons.

E. S. Mayfield's daily dancing classes offer an opportunity to all who would acquire the alluring dance. Appointments may be made either in person or by phone by calling 1868.

The Hip A smashing double program of drama in which Bill Hart and Hoot Gibson are the principal players is the Hip's offering for the final showings today.

William S. Hart's picture is "Bringing Broadway," a story in which he appears as a westerner and later as a wanderer on Broadway. It is when the westerner decides to hunt the bright lights of the east that the action starts, for his job is to keep the wayward son of a dotting millionaire father in line. It happens that the son has disgraced the family and in the hope of bringing him to his senses the father hires Hart as a "chaperon." The son attempts to discredit his "keeper" by humiliating him in the cafes, but here is where the man from the west proves the master of the situation. It is a breezy story of a breezy westerner amid the habits of the great white way, one in which Hart has unlimited opportunity.

Hoot Gibson's picture is "Fight It Out," a thrilling story of the days that have gone.

Tomorrow starts the engagement of Buck Jones in "Two Moons."

Charles Ray brings his engagement at the Strand to a close with the final screenings today of his Paramount success, "An Old Fashioned Boy." The story is built in the atmosphere of the small town and presents Ray as a typical "old fashioned boy." His ideas and methods have not kept pace with the advancing ideas and methods of the girl with whom he is in love, and he fails to notice the estrangement growing between them, at least on the part of the girl. When the time comes for the question of marriage "the old fashioned boy" has already started building the home for his bride. When she finds out his action she looks with disfavor on his presumption that she will marry him, and, womanlike, plays contrary. Here's the boy with everything for married life except a bride, and it is the consequent mixups and misunderstandings that give the production its brilliant entertaining value. Ray is ideal in his characterization and he is surrounded by a particularly pleasing cast.

The added attractions include a comedy and the Fox News. "Heliopole" is the underlined attraction to start at the Strand tomorrow. The Pathe News will carry views of the recent picnic of the employees of the Arizona Eastern.

Amusements 'MRS. WIGGS' RETURNS TO THE ELKS TODAY

The Brandon Stock company returned to Phoenix last night after a five-day tour of neighboring cities and will appear this afternoon and tonight in two more performances of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." May Roberts, who has made so many friends in her interpretation of the southern negro mammy and Sallie, as the lovable Mrs. Wiggs, again will portray this great stellar role, with the entire strength of the capable cast of the Brandon Stock company giving her excellent support. Ed Redmond, the wizard of stagecraft, will come forth again as Mr. Stubbins, and will keep the audience in laughter. Irene Nohlett will be a revelation in the great role of Miss Hazy, and every member of the company will be seen to advantage.

The clever little girls from Tempe, Marjorie and Helen Harris, daughters of Colonel and Mrs. Harris, will play the parts of Europa and Australia, and already have made an impression with their cleverness and ability.

Following the policy of the management of the Elks family playhouse, children will be admitted at half price to witness this great production of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Beginning with a matinee performance Sunday, the Brandon Stock company will present what is considered the feature play of the season, "The Parish Priest." Every member of the cast will have a great part in this famous play and the cast has been carefully selected to fit the characters. Seats are now selling at the Elks box office.

HARRY CAREY WILL BE AT PLAZA TODAY

Harry Carey has bought a fast aerial flivver in which to commute between Universal City, where he earns his daily bread, and his home in San Francisco Canyon, where he eats it. The western star has had the flying bug ever since Orm's Lookout. He spent a couple of months at Universal City last summer, filming "The Great Air Robbery." Carey and the flyer became great pals and the former army aviator gave Harry numerous lessons in the art of navigating the atmosphere. No one realized how badly the actor was infected by the germ, however, till he announced his purchase of a biplane a few days ago. When Carey first bought the ranch which is located about 30 miles from Universal City, he only commuted once a week, and for that purpose always made the trip on horseback. About a year ago, however, the ranch was so far developed that Carey built a comfortable house on the place and made it
